Bombardier and Goodrich choose CORENA

CORENA started off 2010 by celebrating two new North American contracts. Bombardier and Goodrich have followed the path of Pratt & Whitney and have chosen CORENA to support them in the delivery of their future technical publications.

Bombardier has selected the well known CORENA S1000D system to be used for the new C-Series and Lear-85 programs. The implementation will include integrations to several central enterprise systems as well as advanced IETP solutions for Bombardier's customers.

For Goodrich, CORENA will deliver their CORENA S1000D, CORENA iSpec2200 and CORENA IETP tools to handle all S1000D and ATA technical information for new aircraft programs such as Airbus A350, Boeing 787, Bombardier C-Series and Mitsubishi MJET.

"These orders are additional proof of CORENA's success in the market for technical publications in the aerospace industry, and they definitely reaffirms our status as a leader in the global market. We support the OEMs, the component manufacturers and their customers throughout the lifetime of their products", says Toralf Johannessen, CEO, CORENA.
